DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF WASHINGTON COUNTY

VOLUME I.

SPRINGFIELD, KY., WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1905.

NUMBER 51

Gentlemen of the Courts, Citizens of the Town

It's Up to You, What Are You Going to Do With the Vagrants of Springfield?—Now's the Time For Action.

Idleness is a veritable breeder of crime. If able-bodied men in every community would find employment—and it is easy to find—and keep constantly at it, there would not be so much doing in our court houses, and there would always be room to spare in our jails. Men who are physically able to work, but refuse to work, should be forced to. Officers should see to it that the vagrancy law is enforced to the letter; if officers fail to do this then they are guilty of a neglect of duty.

There is no disputing that we have quite a large number of able-bodied loafers, or vagrants, right here in Springfield. These scallawags are "going to the sun," and, as they do not honestly earn a livelihood, it is very natural to suppose that they are petty thieves. They are living by, taking that which others have labored for. Are the people of Springfield going to permit such a state of affairs to exist indefinitely? Are the sworn officers of the town going to do their full duty? Are they going to enforce the vagrancy law?

Last summer the streets of Springfield were fairly lined with robust negro men, who not only refused to work, but impudently laughed at the idea when the matter was suggested to them. That was the time to have forced them into service by enforcing the law, but it was not done. Then, let the law now be enforced. Springfield has some honorable, hard-working colored people, who are respected, and whenever the opportunity affords, they are assisted by the white people. The vagrant class, in a manner, works hardships upon the working class, and the latter should do all their power to assist in suppressing idleness.

If the evil can not be corrected by law then let the citizens of the town give notice to the vagrants that they must leave, just as they would give notice to a band of hobos that they must leave.

It's up to you, gentlemen, of the courts! What are you going to do?

When it comes to the point of an excited lady having her pursued snatched from her hands by a negro, and that, too, under the glare of an electric light, on Main street in Springfield, don't you think it is about time for united action?

Let's rid the town of the habitual loafers; can be done, it must be done. Let's say to him: "Here is work for you; you must get at it, or you must leave the town."

Pretty Hats.

Lexington, Ky., November 12.—To prevent the minds of the female members from being distracted from the sermon by millinery worn by the women members of the choir the Central Christian church, of this city, has requested them to sing bareheaded. The innovation was introduced to-day.

The choir left is immediately behind the pulpit, and officers of the church took the position that the variegated and beautiful hats of the ladies were calculated to engross the minds of women in the congregation.

The female choristers were all dressed in white to make themselves still more inconspicuous.

DEEP CREEK.

Mrs. Ida Elliott entertained quite a large number of friends at a singing one night last week in honor of her niece, Miss Josie Arnold, of Boyle county, who has been visiting her for the past week.

Mr. Phillip Wagner, a deaf mute, who resides in Harrodsburg, and who is engaged in marble work there, was in our vicinity last week, doing some work in the Deep Creek cemetery.

Your reporter is glad to state that Mr. Marcus Cocanougher is better at this writing.

Mr. John H. Elliott Jr., was in Perryville Saturday on business.

A horse belonging to Mr. Oddie Coyle, became frightened Sunday and ran away, demolishing the buggy.

Mr. J. H. C. Elliott was in Mackville Monday on business.

George Elliott, who has been unable to work for six weeks, owing to a sore foot, is now able to resume his work.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Wilkerson, of Boyle county, visited the latter's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. C. Elliott, Saturday and Sunday.

Loses His Job.

Mr. Dean Carey, of this county, has lost his place as guard at the Frankfort penitentiary. Dean is against Blackburn, and as a majority of the prison commissioners are for "Old Joe," they made him walk the plank. It looks to us like as good a Democrat as Dean is, no matter what side of his own political fence he was on, should be allowed to keep his piece of pie and remain at the trough. He should be re-instated forthwith if not sooner.—Danville Advocate.

John Gibson and Frank Marmon, miners, were instantly killed by falling rock at Beattyville, Ky.

Death of Mr. Scrogan.

Mr. Thomas Scrogan, after an illness of about nine weeks of typhoid fever, died at his home, near town, last Wednesday, and his body was taken to Hebron church, in Mercer county, on Thursday and interred. Mr. Scrogan was an exceptionally fine man and his death is regretted by a host of friends. He was about thirty-eight years old and leaves three children, two of whom are small, who will sorely miss a kind and affectionate father. Mrs. Scrogan died about six years ago. These little children, who are now left orphans, have the heartfelt sympathy of all.

The deceased was a member of the Christian church and was a good Christian. He had been residing in Washington county about six years, having moved here from Mercer county.

Death of a Child.

Eugene, the seven-months-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hardesty, died at the home of Mrs. Hardesty's mother in Lebanon last Saturday, and the body was interred there on Sunday. Mrs. Hardesty was called to Lebanon by the death of her sister, and while there the little one contracted spinal meningitis. The father and mother have the sympathy of all in the loss of their little one.

Died in Texas.

Mr. James Hiatt, a brother-in-law of Messrs. S. B. and J. W. Thompson, died at his home in Texas last Sunday. He leaves a wife and six children. Mr. Hiatt formerly resided in Washington county, but moved to Texas twenty-seven years ago.

BOOKER.

The morn is wintry cold and dark. No sun sheds now his lurid spark. Encased as it is in this gray gown, For the wind blows loud for miles around.

The merry hoppers have southward flown. And left our woodlands still and lone. So now what comfort is left for us, Only to write our news to The Springfield Sun, which shines so brightly in our homes each week.

We sincerely hope Miss Alert Watchfulness will appear again soon.

—Mr. A. W. Edelman is erecting a handsome residence on his farm.

The protracted meeting is still in progress at New Hope. Some fine sermons are being delivered by Brother Davis, pastor of Bloomfield Baptist church.

Miss Louise Settle and mother, in their charming way, entertained their friends at 5 o'clock dinner Friday. The table was beautifully decorated in white chrysanthemums. The guests present were: Reva, Adkins and Davis, the Misses Stella Wakefield, Bess Settle, Matye, Yeadie and Nellie Andrews, Hallie Huston, Eva Royalty and Myrtle Croake.

Mr. Bernard Wall and Miss Maude Yancy were quietly married at the home of the bride's parents last Wednesday. Rev. Adkins officiating. Miss Lolla Wall entertained the bride and groom at dinner last Thursday. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Wall, Mrs. Lydia Bobbitt, Springfield; Messrs. Cutsy and Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Smith, and the Misses Louise Settle and Fanny Lydden.

The Misses Hallie Huston and Nellie Andrews have returned to their homes at Maud, after a delightful visit to Miss Louise Settle.

Mr. Jesse Mann entertained a crowd of young ladies Saturday afternoon with his new phonograph, which is the best we ever had the pleasure of hearing.

Mr. and Mrs. James Truxax entertained Revs. Adkins and Davis at dinner Tuesday. A number of other friends were present.

Notice, Taxpayers.

County and State taxes for 1905 are due and must be paid at once. After December 1 penalty will be added. All persons owing back taxes must settle, or their property will be advertised for sale. My term in office expires January 1, and all business must be settled.

BYRON CROAKE, S. W. C.

Gov. Herrick has issued a lengthy statement discussing the causes of Republican defeat in Ohio.

PURSE

Snatched From Mrs. J. R. Claybrook's Hand Monday Evening In Springfield.

When Mrs. J. R. Claybrook was going from the depot to her home on last Monday evening, and when she had arrived at a point on Main street, just before the residence of Mr. W. K. Robertson, a burly negro approached her, and before she hardly had time to realize what had happened, he snatched her purse and ran. This is the first instance of purse-snatching on record in Springfield, and if this guilty scoundrel is apprehended he will be dealt with in such a severe manner as to make all others—if there are others—with such notions think twice before trying the game. Officers are now at work upon the case, and it is to be hoped that the thieving rascal will be caught. If such a thing could be brought to be tied up before the public and lashed with a blacksnake whip until he was blistered from the crown of his head to the soles of his feet.

Thanksgiving Date.

Courier-Journal: Thanksgiving—that day on which the whole country unites in offering praise for the good things of life and attends football games, which are followed by heavy dinners—comes this year on an unusual day. It will be the last day in the month of November, and has very seldom on account of the way the calendar is constructed. November 30 must be on Thursday for it to have the distinction of also being Thanksgiving day, and this cannot happen often in the lifetime of the average man.

Many persons are under the impression that a grand mistake has been made this year and that President Roosevelt is making a radical departure in fixing the date as Thursday, November 30. Some persons think that it should have been November 23, and a large number of inquiries have been received by the Courier-Journal asking what day Thanksgiving day comes this year. President Roosevelt fixed November 30, and he has the authority, by virtue of an act of Congress, to fix any day he may see fit. The law does not specify any special day for the day of thanks, although it is customary for it to be on the last Thursday in November, and the President may fix any day he chooses. The Mayor of Henderson added to the mix-up as to the date by fixing the time as November 23, one week earlier. His proclamation was issued in advance of the present one by the President. He thought he and the President would hit the same day, but the President followed the custom of having the last Thursday, so Henderson will have two Thanksgiving days, one on the 23rd and the other on the 30th.

Campbell's Report.

Barstow Court day sales are as follows: One cow and shoats $28, one old sow, and pig hocks ranging in prices from $18 to $75. Several new and old vehicles at low prices. Shotgun in good demand for the 15th for rabbits and birds. A small crowd in town till the band of fox hunters began to arrive from Springfield and other points. Over 100 dogs registered at the literary tables for the chase this week. S. M. CAMPBELL, Auctioneer.

BROOKSVILLE.

Mrs. Jerome Colvin entertained her many friends on last Tuesday. Those present were Mrs. Sallie Noel, Mrs. W. M. Sutton, Mrs. B. Polter, Mrs. Jane Coulter and Misses Artie and Olive Sutton and Hester Noel.

Mr. Ed Choudhury and Miss Artie Sutton spent last Sunday at the home of W. S. Goodlett.

Mrs. Jerome Wells spent last week with her mother, Mrs. Jane Birch.

Mr. Joe Noel and Miss Hattie Settles spent last Sunday with Messrs. Maud and Eva Inman.

Miss Hester Noel spent last Sunday and Monday with her sister, Mrs. Luther Herron.

Messrs. Vernon Rogers and Nora Chestnut spent last Wednesday with Mrs. Maggie Rogers.

Marion Items.

Falcon: Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Dooney announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary, to Mr. Boyd Winchester Phillips, the wedding to take place on November 25, 1905. Miss Dooney is one of Lebanon's society girls and is both pretty and accomplished. Mr. Phillips is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe C. Phillips, and is at present bookkeeper in the Farmers' National Bank in this city.

Miss Nora Flannan, sister of Mr. R. T. Flannan, died in the hospital at Louisville yesterday morning, where she had been for the past five weeks. She had been an invalid nearly all her life, but her death came as a surprise as it was thought she was improving.

In a general scrap Sunday night between a lot of negroes in Ester's alley, one Mathew Norris was badly beaten with the butt end of an old musket. His arm was dislocated, his head severely cut, and other small injuries.

Mr. A. L. Brown sold 54 acres of land on Pope creek to Mr. Henry Donnelly for $1,500.

W. S. Isaacs sold 57 acres of land to Sam D. Hundley for $1,000. Andrew J. Newton to M. A. Newton 154 acres of land for $600. T. F. Lankford to Mattie Cabbell 33 acres of land for $500. G. W. Glasscock sold 41 acres of land to W. S. Isaacs for $800.

$222 Per Acre.

That farm lands in the vicinity of Lexington are steadily increasing in value was again shown Thursday when the farm of Richard T. Downing, on the Georgetown pike, was sold at public auction for $222 an acre, says the Lexington Leader. The purchaser was John N. Fisher.

The farm consisted of 157.25 acres with a twelve-room colonial brick residence situated on it. On the place is about fifty acres of fine woodland. The farm is well located, well watered and one of the most desirable tracts in that end of the county.

TATHAM SPRINGS.

We are having beautiful weather at present, and the farmers are very busy gathering corn.

Rev. Lowen closed a series of meetings at Fairview Christian church Tuesday with eighteen additions. Rev. Lowen is a good preacher, and has had much success through this county.

We are glad to see some work being done on the pike around here, as it was badly needed.

Our school is progressing nicely under the management of Miss Ethel Rogers. We are sorry to report Miss Irma Graham, of Sharpville, very ill at present.

Mr. T. J. Miller, of Willisburg, was here Thursday on business.

Mrs. J. S. Royalty and daughter, Annie, were guests of Mrs. Burkhead Wednesday.

Miss Emma Hyatt visited her parents at Mackville Saturday and Sunday. James Yates was through here last week buying turkeys.

Mr. and Mrs. Murrel Pinkston were here Friday visiting their daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Shirley were in Bloomfield Saturday shopping. Some of the farmers around here are through strapping tobacco.

Rev. Summers filled his regular appointment at the Baptist church here Sunday.

CARDWELL.

Mr. W. L. Graham is at the bedside of his sister, Irma, at Sharpville. She is yet very weak with stomach trouble.

Mr. R. A. William and wife attended church at Grapevine Sunday.

Mr. Albert Tatum and family, of Harrodsburg, visited S. H. Gardner's and E. T. Perkins several days last week.

Mr. John Fry Hopper and family, of Illinois, will arrive here on the 15th. He says Kentucky is the best place on earth.

Messdams M. E. and M. A. Perkins, of Battle spent Sunday with E. J. Perkins.

Miss Effie Anderson and Miss Lala Gardner spent Sunday with Allie Lay.

Mr. John Hendren, of your town, is among old friends once more at this place. We are glad to see Uncle John out again.

W. H. Little Sunday.

E. T. Perkins was kept awake Saturday and Sunday night looking for the dog to come back that got his 15 pounds of beef Friday night. He will find the answer of his dog when he is dead.

Corn is selling at $1.75 per bushel, delivered.

Stock Sales.

At the sale of R. Lawson, horses brought $20 to $137.50; milch cows, $22.50 to $24.50; 7 heifers, 3 cents; steers, 31 to 32; weanling male, $20 to $120 a pair; oats, $1.60 to $1.80; blade fodder, $1.10; delivered; weanling calves, $9 to $14. Terms ten months without interest.

Perkins and Brown sold to a Lexington party 1 saddle mare, price private.

LONG RUN.

Mrs. Nora Best, who has had a severe throat trouble, is much better.

M. D. L. Cocanougher is able to be out again after an attack of la grippe.

Messrs. Cocanougher sold to Charlie Coyle three fat hogs at 41 cents.

Slandering the South.

Elizabethtown News: It is a misfortune much to be deplored that the South, just now in the morning of her prosperity and at a time when the successful development of her unlimited resources so largely depends upon the settlement within her territory of that class of immigrants who possess intelligence, industry and thrift, should be handicapped in her progress by the dastardly attacks upon her by certain Northern newspapers and other agencies hostile to her welfare. As an example of the unjust and injurious attacks that from time to time are being made upon the South and her people we quote a translated cablegram sent from New York to the "Berling Tageblatt," of Berlin, Germany, and published in that paper:

"New York, July 28, 1905.—[Private Cablegram.]—The emigration broke the record last year with 1,027,421 persons. Austria-Hungary has the largest number, then follow Italy, Russia, Great Britain and Scandinavia.

"The 'Morgen Journal' warns the Germans not to emigrate to the Southern States, as they are forced to work by revolvers and are treated worse than slaves."

To say that the above and other attacks of a similar nature are the outgrowth of ignorance is absurdity. Then the only logical conclusion is that the authors of such falsehoods, realizing the vast opportunities the South offers to the deserving class of immigrants and the knowledge that once acquainted with the true situation in the Southern States the intelligent foreigners will rock southward, they thus seek to stem the tide by creating false impressions and thereby keeping within their own borders the cream of the laboring element.

Farm Sold.

Kentucky Standard: Mr. J. W. Beam has sold his farm containing 85 acres on Poplar Flat to his brother, Mr. E. L. Beam, of Botland, for $4,270.

READ THIS.

Hopkinsville, Ky., June 7th 1901. Dr. E. W. Hall, St. Louis, Mo.—Dear Sir: I suffered ten years with severe kidney and bladder trouble, and at times was unable to work. I was advised to try your Texas Wonder, and after using one-fourth of one bottle, I passed a large gravel, and I have never suffered since passing the same, three years ago. I have recommended it to many others, who reported themselves cured. I must heartily recommend it to all sufferers from kidney or bladder diseases. SAM DEAN.

One small bottle of the Texas Wonder, Hall's Great Discovery, cures all kidney and bladder troubles, removes gravel, cures diabetes, seminal emissions, weak and lame backs, rheumatism and all irregularities of the kidneys and bladder in both men and women, regulates bladder trouble in children. If not used by your druggist, it will be sent by mail on receipt of 41¢. One small bottle is two months treatment and seldom fails to perfect a cure. Dr. E. W. Hall, Sole Manufacturer, P. O. Box 629, St. Louis, Mo. Send for testimonial. Sold by all druggists.

FIGHTING IN THE AIR

Something New In Warfare Introduced By The French Army.

Like a glance into the future by a Verne or a Wells has been the work of the balloon and automobile corps of the French army in the field maneuvers during the past few days, says a special cable dispatch from Paris to the New York American and Journal. High in the air over the forts of Touilly, by the by, lies on the road to Strasbourg—the Lebaudy military dirigible balloon circled and swung, bombarding the fortifications below with blank cartridges, while swift automobiles followed the airship on the roads beneath and fired at it with light rapid fire guns.

The demonstration was the most remarkable of modern war methods. It marked two great steps forward in military science. The practicability of the balloon as an attacking force was clearly shown, but as a pigtail development it was also shown that these aerial assaults could be opposed and a splendid defense established by the use of small, light high power guns mounted on swift auto cars.

The Lebaudy military dirigible balloon made three successful flights and created the greatest enthusiasm among the officers in charge of the maneuvers. The third and by far the most ambitious flight on the part of the balloon resulted in a successful attack upon a series of fortifications. The balloons were confronted with conditions such as have never arisen on any actual battlefield, and their decision has been contested by many who witnessed the maneuvers. They admitted the success of the attack by the balloon on the forts, but also credited the automobile guns with a victory over the balloon.

The great airship was sent to a height of 4,500 feet with several army officers on board. A course was mapped out, which was followed perfectly by the airship, although it was forced to make its way against the wind with the wind ahead and with the wind off the quarter. It swung gracefully, however, passing above each of the forts indicated in the plan of attack turned over to the army officers in charge. The sight was one which called forth expressions of surprise from the army officers following the maneuvers. As easily as a motor boat the great airship was brought into position above each of the forts.

Then at such an altitude as to be distinguishable only with field glasses one of the officers would lean over the side and drop a blank cartridge. It would then be sent to dash in the air and then shoot downward with the constantly increasing momentum that it acquired as it fell. The army officers following the maneuvers. As easily as a motor boat the great airship was brought into position above each of the forts.

While the airship soared through the air a half dozen automobiles on the roads below coursed it like leopards. A constant rattle from the light machine guns marked the attempt to defend the fortifications in this fashion, and from time to time the balloons would set about smaller balloons, which floated away and were used as targets later by the automobile guns, using ball cartridges.

The work of these automobile batteries was remarkable. Although, of course, no lead shells were fired at the airship, the rapidity of fire and the ability of the automobiles to follow the flight of the aerial bombardiers and the accuracy of fire, as shown later against the target balloons, were all considered in making a decision, and the result of the deliberations of the umpire was that the attacking airship would have been destroyed by the automobile corps. What the result would have been had a fleet of aerial battleships been in action the umpires did not say. The accuracy of the aim of the gunners was shown to be remarkable when it was taken into consideration that they were firing from automobiles going at a high rate of speed at balloons moving over 4,000 feet above the ground. Several of the target balloons were hit and shells sent close to others. Further experiments in the use of the airship and of automobile corps will be kept up for several weeks.

"Express Sale."

Lebanon Enterprise: The sale of unclaimed express packages that had accumulated in the various offices of the Adams Express Company over the State, held in this city Monday was largely attended. There were several hundred packages offered, and every one was sold at the highest bid, which, in the vast majority of cases, was less than fifty cents. Three dollars for a suit box was about the largest amount bid on any one article. The box was opened and contained a white silk dress, which auctioneer J. H. Estes staked to the crowd was easily worth $50. However, the purchaser offered to take $15 for the garment, but as no one else for the bargain, the gentleman took the dress with him. Quite a large number of the packages contained patent medicines, other contained soap, books, cheap watches, pictures, merchandise, etc. The proceeds amounted to $175, which amount covers the express charges on the various articles.

Mistaken For McKinley.

LaRue Herald: Mr. C. H. Turney, trading representative of Lawrenceburg (Ind.) Coffin Company, while here forwarded to Mrs. Fannie Robinson McKinley, the widow of the martyr President, at Canton, Ohio, an empty gun shell, which was presented to him under peculiar circumstances. He was standing on the corner of a street in Louisville, when he was approached by a young man who was returning from the Spanish-American war, and mistaking him for Mr. McKinley, to whom it is said he bears a striking resemblance, presented him with this trophy of his marksmanship while in the service. Mr. Turney tried to convince the young soldier of the mistaken identity, but he would not have it so. The shell has been kept by Mr. Turney thus long for reasons known to himself, but was sent to Mrs. McKinley by Mr. Turney this week with full explanation of the peculiar circumstances under which it was presented to him.

The Barlow Sale.

Kentucky Standard: The Richard Barlow sale of personal property which took place in the Stringtown neighborhood yesterday, was well attended and bidding was good. Auctioneer J. T. Eldred reports the sales as follows: Stead of oats, $12; stack of hay, $15; 800 bushel of corn, sold in 100 bushel lots at from 34 to 34½ cents per bushel; cow, $32; heifer calf, $14; small hog, $12; old gray horse, $49; blonished work horse, $50; three-year-old bay mare, $134; black mare, $20. Household stuff and farming implements brought good prices.

A Freak Cat.

Danville Advocate: Col. Ike Durham is the owner of a cat that is probably the only one of its kind in existence. When Col. Durham moved to his present residence on the Perryville place from the West End the cat followed, and although forgotten, the animal showed up the next day after the family was settled in their new home. Col. Durham is a great believer in catching rats by means of steel traps, and if there are any rodents around his place he soon cleans them out. The cat, unfortunately, lost a foot in one of those traps at the old house, and after moving closer to the foot snapper in the same manner, and is now possessed of only one front and one hind foot. Although greatly handicapped in this manner he seldom lets a day pass without catching a rabbit and bringing it to the house.

POINTS ON FEEDING

Pigs that have been kept thrifty and growing on nutritious and cooling grasses are in such a condition that they are able to digest large quantities of feed and utilize it to the greatest extent. Pigs grown and handled in this way are able to finish up rapidly and turned off at the greatest profit. Wheat is superior to corn as a feed for young pigs. It carries less fat and more muscle. Wheat should always be ground before feeding to pigs. Barley is a most satisfactory food and makes a most excellent quality of pork.

Feeding the Calf.

If the calf lacks exercise there is danger of feeding him too much, but if he is kept active and exercised he will not do think he can be overfed, says Andrew Stenson in Farm Home. One of the best calves I ever saw had a self feed and all the same he wanted and also had a great deal of exercise, and he grew up wonderfully well proportioned, well muscled and good boned. I would not want to feed any more oats than he can relish and will take readily and greedily, but enough to keep him smooth. The calf previously referred to had the self feeder only until he was one year old.

Water Feed For Sheep.

Don't try to winter sheep on timothy hay nor feed very much grain. Clover or alfalfa hay, oats and turnips or beets are a perfect winter ration. They need shelter, too, but it should be an open shed, boxed up at the north side and with, open side to the south. Let them pass in and out at their pleasure and look out for dogs.—Farmers Advocate.

Simple Ration For Hogs.

A northeastern gentleman visiting an Illinois farmer who had killed and cured his own meat was so captivated by the superior aroma and flavor of the ham served at the farmer's table that he was led to inquire his method of feeding, says American Swineherd. The ration was simple. It consisted of corn, either shelled or on the cob, whichever was most convenient, and when conditions permitted the corn was always soaked. In addition to the corn was a plentiful supply of swill made by adding two or three quarts of molasses (molasses) to a barrel of water. He stated that he had fed hogs in this way for twenty-five years. They took on flesh rapidly, were always healthy and had never had a case of cholera.

Value of Cut Straw.

Cut straw is a valuable adjunct to the bill of fare on any farm and it is only necessary to see that the rats do not ride it. Cattle, sheep and horses eat cut straw in winter with avidity and thrive on it. Its mixture with the grain induces perfect mastication of a whole.—Breeder's Gazette.

Fine Horses Sold.

Harrodsburg Herald: Last week Mr. Rob Goddard closed the sale of his magnificent match team of sorrels, "Glorious Sunrise" and "Glorious Sunset" to Mr. John Gayley, of Pittsburg. The price received was $3,750. The horses were aided by the noted Red Leaf, and are two of the most beautiful and perfectly gaited animals in the state. They have been exhibited in a number of fair rings, and have always won the blue in whatever contests they were entered. Their beauty and grace has won them a name even outside of the State, and have added materially to Mr. Goddard's reputation as a breeder and trainer of fine horses.

Bowel Trouble

is a sure sign that your digestive organs are overworked—too heavily burdened—in a state of local or general rebellion. It is a serious condition, and if neglected will result in complications of the gravest character.

Death not infrequently ensues as the penalty for thinking that the trouble will correct itself and disappear unaided.

Don't neglect this condition—don't invite disaster by delay, but go to the nearest druggist and buy a bottle of

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

It is the safest, quickest-acting and most effective remedy in the world for all bowel and stomach troubles—pleasant, powerful, and penetrating. It reaches the seat of the trouble and instantly corrects it. The confined gases are released, fermentation is stopped and the affected parts are cooled and strengthened.

DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN can be obtained in both dollar and half-dollar sizes at all druggists.

Your money will be refunded if it does not benefit you.

VERMILION and red will bring for return mail our new booklet, "DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN," and the trouble these who have never tried this wonderful remedy.

A Hoodoo.

Harrodsburg Herald: Many believe a hoodoo is associated with the sheriff's office of Jessamine county. A year ago John Perry and J. G. Scott were opposing candidates for the nomination. A few weeks before the primary Perry viewed Scott should never be sheriff.

but before the day set for the primary, and when the fight was the fiercest, Perry died. Perry's son continued the fight against Scott, and within a few months the son died. Scott then secured the nomination by acclamation, but the elder Perry's vow has been fulfilled. Scott died Sunday, two days before the election which would have made him sheriff.

Generous Editor.

Samuel W. Nichols, editor of the Jacksonville Journal, has probably made more persons happy through his benevolence than any other man in America, says a dispatch from Jacksonville, Ill. He might have been a rich man. As it is, he is prosperous, although he gives a large part of his income away.

He delights in making others happy. That was why he recently paid 420 Jacksonville school children on a train and took them to St. Louis. He paid all the expenses of the trip, provided the coaches and supplied the car fare for the tour of Shaw's garden. Forest park and the retail and wholesale districts of the city. It was a glorious outing for the little ones, 90 per cent of whom had never been out of Jacksonville before. It is a frequent occurrence for Mr. Nichols to take his little friends on excursions.

"None of my little neighbors shall want for all the joys of life, as I did," he says. "They shall have all the pleasure I can give them. I had no pleasures in childhood. I had to go to work before I was ten years of age. I was driving a team when I was twelve. My mother was poor and could not give me the things she desired. I am not rich, but I have a little to spare now and then, and the children get it. I do not know how to squander money. It takes very little for my needs, and all that is left over I give to the children. To see their happy faces does me good. What a vast sight of downright, sinuous pure, genuine happiness is missed by the men who hoard their gold, when, with it, they might scatter so many smiles."

Mr. Nichols has added over half a hundred women to get an education. Many years ago he conceived the idea of establishing a playground for the children of the place, and a couple of years ago he provided such a place at a cost of $10,000.

Last year, during the world's fair, Mr. Nichols brought 400 children to St. Louis and paid their way until they had seen the whole of the big show. Toward the holidays Mr. Nichols is especially busy. He goes to the teachers in the public schools and the overseer of the poor and gets the names of all the poor children in the city. Then he buys dolls for the hundreds, candy for the hundreds, oranges for the box, knives for the dozens, games, books and everything that delights the childish heart and then distributes them in a manner to attract as little attention as possible.

Mr. Nichols is very plain and unassuming, almost careless regarding his personal appearance.

$10,000 REWARD

Offered By William R. Hearst For Evidence of Fraud in the Recent Election in New York.

New York, Nov. 10.—Ten indictments for violation of the election law and two for assault committed at the polls at the election last Tuesday were today drawn up by the grand jury.

It was said to-night that Attorney General Morgan had instituted a searching investigation of the alleged election frauds, which would be continued until the Legislature meets.

The Attorney General and Mr. Morgan to-night examined a number of witnesses in connection with the frauds, and also conferred with M. M. Henry, Yonkers, special counsel for Mr. Hearst, and discussed the plans to prosecute persons against whom charges may be brought.

The situation to-day was described by William R. Hearst as follows:

"The law committee has discovered some very amazing things, and the deeper we go into this thing the uglier it looks. We have evidence against twelve district leaders, and I am confident that we shall send two or three of them to prison. I am just as much interested in the criminal prosecution of this case as I am in the recent. In this case it makes no difference whether I am declared elected or not, in comparison with the greater duty of sending criminals to jail."

"It was for this purpose," Mr. Hearst added, "and to strengthen the evidence against a certain district leader that I made the offer of $10,000 reward to-day for such evidence. We have at least sufficient evidence to prove the necessity of a recount, and I believe that a recount will show a difference of 20,000 votes in my favor."

Objects to Hangers.

Prisoners in the Kansas penitentiary under sentence of death need have no fear of the governor's signing their warrants, says a Topeka dispatch to the Kansas City Star. In a letter to the Christian Herald Governor Edward W. Hoch says that capital punishment is brutal and must soon give way to other methods of dealing with criminals.

The governor's letter is as follows: "The whole train of thought on the subject of criminology is and has ever been toward more humane penalties. Indeed the march of civilization is well shown in the change of the penal statutes. There was when punishments were purely made as severe and brutal as possible. Criminals were boiled in oil, or roasted on a spit, or hanged in barrels with spikes protruding inward and rolled down steep declivities and tortured in every conceivable way. "But the modern mind grows away from these brutal practices in the name of the law, and capital punishment is the worst if not the only remaining relic of the dark ages in the treatment of crime. The infliction of this punishment has been made as humane as possible, which is a prophecy of its ultimate abandonment. Capital punishment does not deter criminals from committing crime. Statistics abundantly establish this fact. It is a brutal custom that does no good and must soon give way to a better philosophy of government and a higher Christian civilization."

Cane Fad For Women.

They came with ineffectual companions of the fair sex this fall, says the New York Press. Although every little while the fad has been tried without success, it has been adopted so strenuously in Lenox that the season is likely to be a record one for women's walking sticks. Mme. Engelmueller, wife of the Austrian ambassador, soon after she arrived in Lenox this autumn was seen wending her way about with a small white cane. She never forgot it or left it at home and even carried it on her frequent trips to the Lenox club or to the post-office. Of course her fad found many followers, for those who hadn't dared try it before felt no hesitancy now that they could find themselves in such good company, and canes became accepted with morning attire. Among those who carry them are Miss Charlotte Barnes, who brought one from abroad which is trimmed with a huge bow of ribbon; Miss Constance Bacon, whose walking stick is the identical luxury with the bow, and Mrs. Archibald Mackay.

Saved By Dynamite.

Sometimes, a flaming city is saved by dynamiting a space that the fire can't cross. Sometimes, a cough hangs on so long, you feel as if nothing but dynamite would cure it. Z. T. Gray, of Calhoun, Ga., writes: "My wife was a very aggravated cough, which kept her awake nights. Two physicians could not help her; so she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which eased her cough, gave her sleep, and cured her. Strictly scientific cure for bronchitis and La Grippe. At C. J. Haydon's drug store, price 50c per bottle; 1.00; guaranteed. Trial bottle free."

Anton Rowenhurst, aged seventy-five, was run down and killed by a train in front of his home in Newport, Ky.

Silage For Steers.

We carried through last winter in two barns 1,000 Hereford steer calves, with silage as the main ration, writes H. Jones of Ohio in American Agriculturist. A silage is made of well matured corn and neatly matted soy beans, mixed in the proportion of about two-thirds to three-fourths the former and one-fourth to one-third the latter. We have found that this kind of silage is much superior for beef-making purposes to corn silage.

The calves at the square barn were carried through the winter on corn and soy bean silage, clover, alfalfa and oat hay and one pound per head per day of cottonseed meal. They came through in fine, thrifty condition, and made gains of about forty-five pounds per month from Dec. 10 to April 25.

The calves at the round barn were fed all the corn and soy bean silage and clover, alfalfa and oat hay which they would eat and from Dec. 5 to Jan. 1 one pound per head per day cottonseed meal, and a half pound per head till Feb. 15 and two pounds per head from that time till May 10, when they were turned to grass. From April 1 to May 10 there were added to their ration five pounds per head per day corn and clover meal, which, with the cottonseed meal, was applied over and thoroughly mixed with the silage. The calves at the round barn were kept inside the whole winter and up to April 1.

The 400 calves at the round barn weighed on Dec. 10, after a week's rest from their 1,200 miles' shipment, 300 pounds, and on May 10 625 pounds, making a gain for the five months of 267 pounds, or 53.4 pounds per month, or 1.78 pounds per day. When turned to grass they were as sleek and well as grass fed cattle. Every one of them had done well, there not being a single calf in the whole bunch but what was fleshy and thrifty.

Our experience with these cattle furnishes us another demonstration of the great value of silage for beef making purposes. The calves consumed during the winter about twenty-five to thirty pounds per head per day of silage and two to three pounds of hay. Feeding silage at $2.50 per ton, hay at $5, cottonseed meal at $25 and corn at 40 cents per bushel makes the daily cost of feeding during the five months these calves were fed 6.4 cents per head and the cost of the gains 3.6 cents per pound. This is scarcely more than half what it would cost to make equal gains by any method of grain feeding with which I am familiar.

$600 Given Away.

The Weekly Courier-Journal (Henry Watterson's paper) wants to share the profits of this prosperous year with its subscribers. It proposes to give away twenty Christmas presents ranging from $100 to $20, amounting to $600 in all. There will be four general presents of $100, $50, $20 and $10, and sixteen presents of $20 and $20 to be given away to subscribers of Kentucky, Indiana, Tennessee, Texas, Mississippi, Missouri, Virginia and Iowa. The plan is fair and simple. Write to the Courier-Journal Company, Louisville, Ky., for a copy of the Weekly Courier-Journal, giving full details. It will be sent free.

A Creeping Death.

Blood poison creeps up towards the heart, causing death. J. E. Stearns, Belle Plaine, Minn., writes that a friend dreadfully injured his hand, which swelled up like blood poisoning. Bucken's Arnica Salve drew out the poison, healed the wound, and saved his life. Best in the world for burns and sores. See at C. J. Haydon's drug store.

MYSTERY SOLVED.

Fate of William Short Revealed By Breastpin Worn By Southern Lady.

A dispatch to the Cincinnati Enquirer says that at the beginning of the Civil War, William Short, of Washington county, was attending Bacon College, Harrodsburg, now Kentucky University, of Lexington. He enlisted in the Confederate army, and was with Morgan's raid through Indiana and Ohio.

He was captured, but made his way home. His father gave him some money and a horse, and he departed again for the South. He was not heard of again until two weeks ago. On that date near Fredericksburg, the country people had collected at the home of a family of the name of Duncan for a country dinner. Among them was a Mrs. Kenzie, living near Genesee, Cumberland county, Tennessee, who wore the picture of a young man in a breastpin. Mrs. Jenkins, a sister of William Short, was also a guest at the dinner. She noticed the picture and asked about it. "I am unable to give you his name," replied Mrs. Kenzie. "He was killed at a blacksmith shop near our gate in Tennessee. He had taken dinner at our house, and while waiting at the shop for his horse to be shod, twelve Federals rode up. He had on a Confederate uniform and a sword, but was not killed until after he had wounded two of his assailants. He had this photograph and about $100 in money, but no paper by which he could be identified. Not knowing his name or home, we buried him in our family graveyard, and with the money erected a tombstone over the grave. I was a little girl at the time, and kept the picture, had it set, and when away from home always wore it." Then Mrs. Jenkins informed her it was the photograph of William Short, her youngest brother, and that this was the first tidings they had had of him. Young Short had two brothers in the Federal army, one of whom yet survives. Accompanied by this brother, Mrs. Jenkins visited the spot in Tennessee where the boy was buried, with the intention of bringing his body to his Kentucky home for interment, but found him so nicely laid away that they decided to leave him in the soil of sunny Tennessee.

Death In Texas.

Harrodsburg Herald: Mr. T. E. Kirtley, formerly of Washington county, died at Greenville, Texas, a few days ago. He was born in Texas, twenty-five years ago and entered the employ of a large wholesale establishment, but for the past ten years was unable to walk. He was such a valuable man to the company they sent a carriage to his home to take him to his work, bookkeeping, and at night sent him home in the carriage. He was a brother-in-law of Mrs. Chap Coleman, of this county.

Mayor Tom Johnson, of Cleveland, has appointed an anti-suicide commission, intended to check the carnival of self-destruction in Cleveland.

The "small boy" and the rabbit are both going to get shot during the hunting season.

Let us all hope that the day is dawning when the rich grafter of the big city will be given the same sort of a trial before the courts of the land that is accorded to the horse-thief and the safe-blower.

A woman up in Ohio is suing for divorce because her husband lost $50 on a rooster fight. A pure case of "chicken-heartedness" on the woman's part.

Of course, you are glad of your friend's loss if you made a wager with him on the election.

A $100,000 DRESS.

A Washington City woman has recently paid one hundred thousand dollars for a dress. We have no doubt that the dress is just what this woman needed—an array of some sort of finery to attract the attention of the people from the woman. In inhabiting the universe, the Good Lord made some women so uncomfortably ugly that it is necessary for them to trim themselves up with a lot of glistening trinkets in order that the attention of the public may be attracted from a mug, the terrible plainness of which would make a monkey, fresh from the African jungles, turn up his nose and thank the fates, that even with his long tail, he has reason to be proud of his "general appearance." The real pretty woman—the woman whose beauty causes a fellow to view a panorama of pretty things for two weeks after he has seen her—doesn't need a one hundred thousand dollar dress—just a plain gingham will do—just a wild rose in her hair—and that's all—that's all that's necessary to make a fellow feel that he ought to say his prayers and get religion. Nothing gaudy about her; no sparkles to attract the eye from those lips that God touched with his finger tips into a smile. And, praise the Lord, the old world is crowded with pretty little women who can dress to a "queen's taste" in a gingham dress. But don't you wish your wife owned a one hundred thousand dollars "kahment?"

The Constitutional Amendment was lost by one majority in Washington county.

THE SUN'S LITTLE SERMON.

One of these poor, unfortunate, stingy, rich fellows is to be pitied—pitied because he is miserable—miserable because he is afraid his dollars, in some manner, are going to take on wings and go away to a remoteness from whence they will never again emerge. A miser is ever ready to believe that the people—even his neighbors—are planning to take from him his precious coin—his little idols of gold and silver—the gods he worships. He's a poor man with a sock full of rusty dollars. If the jingle of a dollar ever becomes as music to your ear and if you find that your eye sees more beauty in the cold print of the eagle than it sees in the dimpled hand of a baby boy or the sunny curls of a baby girl, then it is time for you to fall upon your knees, even upon the thorns with which your path must be strewn, and pray to God to deliver you from that most damnable crime—money-worship. Of all the contemptible beings upon earth, the most contemptible is the cringing coward who places his thousands above the Throne of God and his fellowman. He deserves not even a little hut in which to abide, but he ought to be made to lie himself to the thickets and take up his abode with the creeping things of the universe. I went to school with a club-footed boy once—he was born with a club foot. When he was a tiny infant a physician offered to straighten the foot for $50. Notwithstanding that his old daddy was worth one hundred thousand dollars he refused to furnish the money with which to buy the brace. This sounds like an "unreasonable fee" but every word of it is true. That son of a thirty-five year old club-footed and horribly deformed. Fifty dollars in braces would not only have given him relief through life but would have saved him much embarrassment. The father of this boy died not many years ago; died a most miserable man, as he lived a most miserable man; and the gold he hoarded, and in hoarding lost his soul, is now being spent by others. It is said when he was breathing his last his long, bony fingers were thrust out time and time again as if gathering in the coin. It is wrong to speak in any other way of a dead human, except in a gentle way, so we have been taught, but pardon us for saying that we believe the bandits of the plains and the robbers of the mountains can present a stronger case of defense before the courts of God than can the man who would refuse to give fifty dollars for a brace with which to straighten the foot of his baby boy.

Sometimes a wise man admits that he "acted a fool"; but a fool is always convinced that he has acted in no other but a wise manner.

"Getting into trouble" is like dropping the gourd into the well. It's easy to get in, but mighty hard to get out.

A Commercial Club is a good thing; Springfield ought to have one.

Whenever a St. Louis grand jury runs out of something to do it "brings in" another indictment against Senator Burton.

A Democratic poll, made by the Democratic Campaign Committee of Washington county, indicated a majority of 225 for Osbourne. These figures were given out two or three days before the election. The tabulated vote in this issue shows a majority of 225 for the Democratic nominee for Sheriff. And, how is that for "figurin'?"

The attractive, feathery, glistening spangles, and red, and green, and blue, and black, and white, and pink, and yellow, and brown trimmings upon the hats of the women in a Lexington choir attracted so much of the attention of the female members of the audience that the preacher has requested that the choir sing "bareheaded." That's what you might call "getting the head right," but how is the heart?

If the ballots in greater New York are recounted it's not improbable that William Randolph Hearst will be declared Mayor, and some of the election officers sent to the penitentiary.

Bossism may not be dead throughout the whole country—it may be alive in spots—but a large per cent. of the "breed" swallowed its "poison pill" on November 7 wiggled for a few hours and died. It will be attended to "in spots" next election and we most earnestly believe that in a little while "gang rule" will be as noiseless and as dead as a clap of last spring thunder. The handwriting is on the wall. The penitentiary is yawning for grafters and the people are determined to have the affairs of their cities and of their country conducted in a manner, to say the least, decent.

at this place. Our friend, Bruck Powell, got in by a large majority. We believe it impossible for Bruck to be beaten, as he is a straight-forward gentleman.

The carpenters are getting along nicely on the residence of Mr. John Haydon.

Mrs. Berry Shewmaker visited her parents, near Harrodsburg, part of last week.

There is a number of our citizens going to have telephones put into their residences, which will be of great benefit to the community, especially to our business.

Mackville is on a boom, and there is a great deal of business transacted here.

Died, at the home of his son, Mr. Mike Noel, of heart droopsey, we lost an honorable citizen. Funeral services were held last Wednesday at Deep Creek church and interment occurred in the cemetery at that place.

Bedford Graves, a Monroe county farmer, was killed by a mule's kick.

A Cold On The Chest

Is Always Uncomfortable
and Often Dangerous

This is the season for colds, and you will be wise to provide yourself with a bottle of "MENTHOLATED" Cough Syrup. Neglect of a cold in its early stages is worse than carelessness. A well-known lung specialist called it

Constructive Suicide

We guarantee that this cough medicine will quickly cure a fresh cold, and will relieve even the most obstinate cough of long standing. The price is only 25 cents per bottle. Lots of other kinds and other medicines here.

Public Sale

OF RESIDENCE OF

Sidney Green, Dec'd.
Saturday, November 25, 1905

We will, on the above date, at 2 o'clock, p. m., after for sale to the highest bidder, the beautiful new 10-room residence, located on the south side of East Main street, in the town of Springfield, Ky. This is one of the most desirable homes in Springfield, being new and up-to-date in every respect. Mr. Green had it built under his own supervision, and using nothing but the very best material that money could buy. This house has but one roof on first and second floors, electric lights all over the house, a splendid cellar, large front and back porches, 6 large closets and china cabinet, stable, carriage house, smoke house, coal house, and in fact everything necessary for comfort and convenience. Enclosed with new iron fence, has concrete walk in front and around house, yard nicely set in bluegrass, and nice thirty shade trees planted and growing. This is a beautiful location, near graded school and a place that is complete in every respect. At the same time we will offer for sale the lot adjoining this property, fronting on Main street 60 feet and running back about 225 feet to the branch. We will also sell a lot of household furniture. Sale will take place at the house. Terms made known day of sale. For further information call on or address

C. A. GREEN and J. C. McELROY, Admrs.
Sidney Green, deceased.

LOVE.—If the party that found a black fur rambler between my home and my office will let me know his address I will send him the mate to it. Or if perchance he did not know the glove I will satisfactorily reward him if he will return it to me.
Reply, J. H. Lampron.

HIP BROKEN.—On Tuesday of last week Mrs. Jno. A. Tucker, near Fredricktown, fell and broke her left hip, near the joint. Notwithstanding her advanced age she is doing well and it is thought will recover.

NOTICE, TEACHERS.—State Superintendent Pappas found it impossible to send money for teachers in time to be paid last Saturday, the 11th. However, the money will be received by County Superintendent Bush in time for payment next Saturday, the 18th.

BE CAREFUL.—If you are going to hunt this season "handle your shotgun with care." Mr. Thomas Hawkins, who lives on the Mackville pike, came near being killed yesterday. He dropped his shotgun and it went off and the load passed up beside his face, tearing off the rim of his hat.

Yankey, Montgomery & Co. purchased twenty-three head of fine cattle from Mr. Robert McElroy last week. The cattle averaged 1375 pounds and were bought at 41 cents. This cattle firm has been doing a large business in Washington and adjoining counties during the past summer and this fall. Farmers are anxious to sell to these men, because they know they are going to be given a fair deal.

SWISS COLONY.—Mr. J. H. Maddox, who is in New York City for the Shelby County Colonization Company, writes that he feels confident that he will be able to get a number of Swiss and German people to come to this county, says the Shelbyville News. He says that splendid young men from twenty-one to twenty-five years of age have expressed a willingness to come if they can be insured work on farms at $15 per month.

A protracted meeting, which promises to be of unusual interest, is to be commenced at the Harrodsburg Christian church November 26. The meeting is to be conducted by Rev. F. T. Reed and his brother, "The Harrodsburg Democrat" says that they have recently closed a meeting at Columbia, Mo., with 217 additions to the church and that they have never conducted a meeting with less than 100 additions.

LOST DOG.—On last Sunday morning my bird dog left home and since that time I have been unable to find him. He is a large setter, long hair, and brown and white spots. I turned him loose about the time services at the Catholic church were over, and it may be that he followed some one home. I recently brought the dog from Indiana. Information will be appreciated.
J. H. McCLURE,
Springfield, Ky.

WILD TURKEYS.—Yesterday morning when a drive of turkeys were being driven through town to the poultry house of M. H. Jones, they stampeded and quite a number of them hopped themselves to the roof of the court house. After considerable coaxing and a tossing of stones, etc., it was found that the turkeys would not come down, and that's where the fun came in. Rifles and shotguns were brought into use, and after sixty-six shots had been fired fourteen turkeys succumbed.

NOT WANTED.—Several "Uncle Tom Cabin Shows" are exhibiting over the State, says the Shelbyville News, and we desire to congratulate the managers of the local play house in the good judgment they display in declining to book a "Tom" show in Shelbyville. In Lexington the ladies of the U. D. C. are up in arms over the announcement of an "Uncle Tom's Cabin" show at the opera house and they have issued an address requesting all good citizens to decline to patronize the attraction.

MARRIED.—The Marion Falcon says: Basil Payton, who is known in this county as collector for the Wrought Iron Range Co., and Mrs. Malissa Green, of Washington county, boarded the afternoon train here Wednesday for Louisville, where they were married that evening at the home of Dr. Jim Purdon, a brother of the bride. After the ceremony they left for the home of the groom in Lebanon, Tenn. The bride formerly resided in this county and has many friends who wish her a happy married life.

THAT FIRE SCREEN.—Have you ever thought about that fire screen for the open grate? The Sun has called your attention to this matter more than once; it will be too late after the little one is fatally burned. The Harrodsburg Herald says: The two-year-old child of Sally Jenkins, who lives at the race track, was fatally burned yesterday afternoon. Its clothing caught from the grate and burned off, and its shoes were burning when help reached it. Dr. Horace Witherspoon was hurriedly called and did all that was possible to alleviate the child's suffering.

THE GRAND JURY.—After being in session fourteen days, the grand jury returned forty-nine indictments and adjourned on last Friday. The indictments returned are for the following offenses: Carrying concealed deadly weapons, 6; perjury, 2; malicious cutting and shooting, 3; pointing pistol at another, 2; forgery, 1; suffering ransom on premises, 2; shooting on highway, 2; leasing premises for gaming, 1; failure to brew whistle, 1; liquor to minors, 3; liquor without license, 4; disturbing religious worship, 1; gaming, 3; breach of peace, 14; injuring personal property, 1; adultery, 2; working on Sunday, 1.

WATCH YOUR DOG.—This is the season when the bird-dog-chief is abroad in the land, and you'd better keep an eye on Towser. The Danville Advocate thus advises: "Those owning bird dogs that are broken and known to be good in the field, had better take warning and chain them until the hunting season begins. Already two fine dogs have disappeared mysteriously, a pointer belonging to Dr. D. S. Kincaid, and a fine setter owned by Mr. Fox Caldwell. A fine-looking setter dog was owned by the home of Mr. Hubert McGoodwin this morning, and appeared to have been lost. Mr. McGoodwin said the animal was undoubtedly the property of a sportsman, but the owner could not be located in Danville."

You Must Sleep.

If you cannot, it is due to an irritated or congested state of the brain, which will soon develop into nervous prostration.

Nature demands sleep, and it is as important as food; it is a part of her building and sustaining process. This period of unconsciousness relaxes the mental and physical strain, and allows nature to restore exhausted vitality.

Dr. Miles' Nervine brings refreshing sleep, because it soothes the irritation and removes the congestion.

It is also a nerve builder; it nourishes and strengthens every nerve in your body, and creates energy in all the organs.

Nothing will give strength and vitality as surely and quickly as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"During the past winter I had two attacks of La Grippe which left me very weak, and in bed confined. I was so nervous I could not sleep. My wife after trying different remedies, went for a doctor. The doctor was out, and a neighbor recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine and she brought home a bottle. I took it for some time, and had terrible pains in my head. After taking a few doses of Nervine the pain was not so severe, and I slept. I am now much improved. HENRY M. SMITH, Urbana, Ill."

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by your druggist. Beware of cheap imitations. It is a little bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money. Write to Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

A Little Nonsense

Now and Then Is Relished by the Most of Men.

Hicks—Did the lecture you gave your wife on "economy" have any effect on her?

"Wicks—Well, yes; she's economical with her smiles now.—Browning's Magazine."

Wanted Recognition.
It was quiet in the office of the Carnegie here fund committee.

Nobody had rescued anybody from drowning, nobody had torn off a red petticoat and dragged a train freight car to destruction with its freight of human lives, no one had leaped into a burning building to save the imperiled ones within.

"There was nothing doing. Not a sound could be heard save the interest mechanically adding itself up."

Suddenly but softly came through the door a fat man.

"You the boss here?"
"I am in charge here," responded the attendant.

"I want a medal and a slice of the fund."

"Yes, sir. On what grounds?"
"Saved a whole community from yellow fever. What's the name of this mosquito that carries the germs?"

"Stingy-gia fasciata, Urbana, Ill."

"That's it. I was sitting on the hotel veranda, and one of them got on me—only one that ever struck the town. Smashed! I smatted him. Look there!"

And the clerk after inspecting the remains of the mosquito on the man's cheek plucked on the medal and filled out a check.—Chicago Tribune.

Went the Limit.
"My wife went shopping today and she had exactly $32.19 when she started out."

"How are you so sure, she had just that much?"
"Because when she came back she told me that was the amount she had spent."—Philadelphia Press.

A Hot One For John.
"The word 'vulgarize,' explained the teacher, means to burn suddenly and severely. Julius Green, you may give us a sentence containing the word 'vulgarize' used in its full meaning."

Julius cogitated for a moment, then said, "Mary's glances scorched John when he vulgarized"—Judge.

A Matter of Figures.

Daughter—I thought I saw the duke come in. Where is he?

Father—He has just had an interview with me, and at present he is in the library trying to figure out whether he loves you or not.

"Do you know how wrong it is to catch fish on Sunday?"

"But, boss, I ain't catchin' any."—Tattler.

Was Sure of It.
"No, ma doesn't need a map," said little Johnny to the man at the door.

"How do you know?" asked the agent.

"Because," said Johnny, "she wipes the floor with me"—Detroit Free Press.

Him or Anybody Else.
Nell—Yes, Miss Passy is engaged to Mr. Hounley. It was quite sudden. She told me she never expected to marry him, but Belle—She might have left off the word "him" and still be telling the truth.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Cause and Effect.
"Charley got seems very dull and stupid lately."

"Yes, he says he has something important on his mind."

"That accounts for it. The poor thing undoubtedly is crushed."—San Francisco Call.

Goodness.
Mamma—Has no vices of any kind. His character is flawless. Why don't you accept him?"

Daughter—But, mamma, it would be so uninteresting to marry a man that good.—Brooklyn Life.

An Aged Pair.
"I wish, ma'am, you would not interrupt me every time I try to say something. Do I ever break in when you're talking?"

"No, you berate, you go to sleep!"—London Punch.

The Reason.
She—What do you think of this new theory that all the angels belong to the masculine sex?"

He—Well, the men have to go somewhere else you women want the earth.—Baltimore American.

Still Worse.
Higgins—You look worried, old man. Higgins—I am worried.

Higgins—Don't owe anybody money, do you?"

Wiggins—No, but several people owe me money.

A Conclusive Test.
"How will you estimate the carrying capacity of your flying machine?"

"By the amount of steak it will float," answered the practical inventor.—Washington Star.

Rather Tame.
She—Was the football game interesting?"

He—No. It was as bloodless as a French duel.—Chicago News.

Herb W. Edwards Injured.
Herb W. Edwards, of Des Moines, Iowa, got a fall on an icy walk last winter, spraining his wrist and bruising his knees. "The next day," he says, "they were so sore and stiff I was afraid I would have to stay in bed, but I rubbed them well with Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and after a few applications all soreness had disappeared." HOUSEHOLD HINTS.
A flannel wet with kerosene oil will remove its specks from brass. Polish with cloths.

When threading a needle in a dim light if the thread is white hold it against a dark background, if dark hold it against a light background.

The label on a glass jar will keep clean and in place longer if pasted on the inside. Of course this only applies where dry materials are used, such as rice, etc.

For those troubled with roaches and water bugs burn a shovelful of old pie tin and sprinkled in their runways will induce them to leave their happy homes "for good."

To revive a drying fire water over the embers a tablespoonful of granulated sugar. Old coals should be saved for the same purpose, and they are very useful to add to the wood employed for fire kindling.

When you want a pleasant physic try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are easy to take and produce no griping or other unpleasant effect. Sold by C. J. Haydon.

WASHINGTON COUNTY BUSINESS DIRECTORY

WHEN YOU WANT TO MAKE A PURCHASE, MAKE IT AT HOME, when you want to have a job of work done, have it done at home. If you go away from home to buy, or if you go away from home to have work done, nine times out of ten you hurt yourself worse than you do the home merchant or the home mechanic. At home the merchant knows you and will not misrepresent his goods to you; he has known you for years, he is your friend, he doesn't want to cheat you, he doesn't want your money for nothing. If you have ever bought anything from a mail-order house, doubtless you can remember of having received different treatment. Their propositions look nice in print, but don't come up to the mark. "Pay your money" "out" at home and it may "come back" again, but send it to one of the big mail order houses and it will buy decent cigars for some millionaire in a European house. The Sun here to call the attention of its subscribers to the following business concerns in Washington County by whom you may buy and select your store. You will be tickled when you compare your purchases with that of the man who bought from the big mail-order house. TRY YOUR HOME MERCHANT FIRST; THAT WILL BE TREATING HIM FAIR.

Women as a Class.
It is strange how slow men are to recognize that in all matters of practical hygiene the women are necessary. We shall never have clean cities until they undertake the job, nor shall we know how to be good national housekeepers until the private housekeepers of the nation extend their hereditary function to public needs and duties. Every time the women are given a chance to clean up a dirty city, carry on a crusade against public diseases and immoralities, they are successful, and there is at once a new order of things. There should be a woman's civic club or city improvement league in every American city and town. America's Medicine.

Baby's Short Clothes.
When making baby's short clothes mothers will find it a great saving if they will do the following two simple things: Make the neck bands of the little dresses a trifle larger than necessary, then draw very narrow tapes through, and when making the sleeves cut them a little longer than required and sew two horizontal tucks below the elbow. If this is done, as baby grows and his little arms lengthen the tucks can be let out and the string around his neck need not be tied so tightly. In this way the little dresses will last much longer without being worn out.

Growing Fits.
Children generally grow by fits and starts. Sometimes what may be called a "fit of growing" is ushered in by a slight feverish attack. Rapid growth is a great strain on the constitution. Plenty of nourishment, plenty of sleep and plenty of play in the open air are needed by children who are growing fast. If they outgrow their strength it may be hard to recover it. Overwork of the brain should be carefully guarded against when children are growing very quickly.

A Treasure From the South Seas

By HOWARD FIELDING

Copyright, 1935, by Charles W. Hooker

"MR. TERRY would like to see you, sir," said the office boy, and then, perceiving that the name conveyed no meaning to his chief, he added: "Tinker Terry. That's what he says. Tell Mr. Austin it's the 'Tinker'."

Austin blinked at the boy with the manner of one who is waking from a dream, and, in fact, he had been recalled from thoughts scarce nearer to reality than dreamland is.

"Tinker Terry is dead," said he slowly. "He was drowned two years ago last April in the middle of the Pacific ocean."

"He looks it, sir," responded the boy, with a timid grin.

"Send him in," said Austin.

Presently there came at the door of the private office a man who had indeed been drowned. Fathoms deep he had gone down amid the whirlpools of this world, and the engulfing billows had sung in his ears.

He was short of stature and of a starved leanness; his worn, shiny black clothes hung in folds and drooped as if they were wet; a weather-beaten hat was in his hand, and the hair of his head was sleek on top, like a swimmer's, falling over his ears in streaks of black and gray, though the man was under thirty.

He closed the door hastily behind him and, without waiting for welcome, drew a chair up to Austin's desk and began to pour forth a wild "Odyssey" of the south seas. He had a gift of narrative style, and Austin's natural dread of what are called "hard luck stories" vanished in the inside of one minute. His interest took hold upon the tale, he followed it with eagerness, even with envy, for there lurked in him a great unsatisfied appetite for adventure.

"But what was the object of all this?" he demanded when Terry paused. "What the deuce were you after out there? Why were you so anxious to reach this island of what do you call it?"

"Halemu," said Terry. "That's its name. And now I'll show you what I was after."

He drew from his pocket a little metal box which had once contained wax matches, but was now full of irregular fragments of a yellowish, white substance like the dried root of some plant.

"This is my treasure," said he. "I faced fifty deaths to get it, and, by Jingo, I succeeded. There's a ton of it stored in San Francisco in my name."

"A ton of it?" gasped Austin.

"Oh, I can get as much more as we need," said Terry. "I've made all the arrangements."

"But what's it for? What can you do with it?"

Terry nervously selected a bit of the root and put it into his mouth, and, as he chewed it, he said:

"THIS IS MY TREASURE."

Throughout the subsequent conversation, he chewed it as if it were his soul's sustenance. But he did not do it to answer Austin's question. Between them on the left of the desk he laid a book which had once been a handsome product of the printer's art, but was now battered and torn and shrunken with many wrappings. Austin recognized it for a volume of south sea sketches by an author so illustrious that his name must be suppressed in this affair. Terry opened the book at a place where a leaf was folded and pointed to a passage that ran as follows:

"It is not in the nature of this world's governance that an idle should be as blessed as Halemu above all its fellows and not have an appropriate cause to balance the account. This little land of plenty in the barren sea is no safe residence for strangers. It is the ancestral home and present headquarters of the plague of rheumatism, and I and you shall have found yourself immune in every other corner of the earth, here the invisible rack of torture waits for you, and within one personal attention, but if you want to work you shall be stretched upon a howling. The natives indeed protect themselves by the use of a simple root which grows in vast abundance somewhere in the interior. Its secret is preserved from visitors and from resident whites as well. These must buy from the chief, whose charge is moderate, considering the possibilities of extortion, which lie in such a monopoly. As for the virtues of the remedy I can testify from personal experience. An hour suffices for the cure, and a handful of the root will guarantee freedom from pain for many weeks. The natives call it kanitu, a coined word replacing an older name now out of use."

Terry had been following the author from line to line of the paragraph, and at the precise moment when the end was reached he cried:

"What do you think of that? Did you ever hear of such an infirmity? How has this fever lain so long buried? Man, do you realize the worth of it?"

Austin closed the book and for some seconds contemplated the author's name, hal' kanitu, upon the cover.

"I love this man like a brother," said he, "yet he was no physician."

"Physician he himself!" exclaimed Terry impatiently. "I'd rather have the patient's word than the doctor's any day. He says he was cured. That's what the public wants to know."

"Do you mean to say that you're going to try to put this stuff on the market?"

"Am I?" rejoined Terry in a sort of subdued shriek as he sprang to his feet. "Man, do you fancy that I like to be poor? Is this my taste in the matter?"

"Ha, ha! And, besides," he added, with a change of tone pathetic and absurd—"besides, I am in love."

Austin drew a deep breath and seemed about to say something serious. Then he checked the utterance and began to laugh slowly and with increasing enjoyment. Terry sat down, but was too nervous to sit still.

"What's the joke?" he demanded when he could restrain himself no longer.

"I'm in love, too," responded Austin. "And her father has the rheumatism. Marvellous coincidence?"

Terry's eyes twinkled. "You give him some of this," said he. "If the man has any gratitude—"

"It's not a question of gratitude," interrupted Austin. "It's a matter of propriety. My pecuniary situation does not warrant me in falling in love with a young lady who has been favored with all the advantages of wealth."

I am generally supposed to be a sharer in this fairly prosperous business, but the fact is that I am only the salaried manager on a yearly contract. I haven't $10,000 of my own in the world; so there's the end of it."

"You put your $10,000 in kanitu," said Terry, with dire earnestness, and you'll have a fortune within two years."

He supported this assertion with the most moving arguments, but Austin was obstinate. He would not risk his $10,000 on kanitu, nor would he consent to experiment with that remedy in the case of the rheumatism which he dreamed of curing father-in-law. This latter refusal Terry seemed to take heartily, and he turned to Austin, who was downhearted because of Austin's deprive a sufferer of his only earthly hope.

"Just tell me who he is and give me his address," pleaded Terry, "and I'll make a new man of him."

"Not for gold and precious stones," said Austin, and at this Terry abruptly took his leave after hastily declining a loan of money.

In the evening of the second day thereafter Austin called at the home of the queen of his heart and found her shown into the drawing room found himself alone with her father, Mr. Douglas Harland, who was pacing the floor and chewing the wax.

"How are you, Austin?" he cried, with amazing cordiality. "Glad to see you. How's your friend, Mr. Terry?"

Austin paused, speechless, and his gaze was so intent upon Harland's jaw that it sufficed for a question.

"Yes, that's it," said Harland—"kanitu. By George, sir, this stuff is heaven's best gift to man!"

"You don't really believe that it's done you any good?"

"Believe?" cried Harland, and he tossed his arms high. "If I did that yesterday morning," he added, "the thing would have been me. My dear fellow, I'm going to chew this stuff all the time. I'm going to learn to chew it in my sleep. You did me a good turn when you sent Terry to my office, he's—"

"When I did what?"

"He's a bright fellow in his way," continued Harland, not noting the interruption. "He's got a good thing, and he knows how to push it. Of course I understand that. But Terry said that you couldn't go in deeper than $10,000 and that you view that as a small sum. You're a miser, I tell you. I'm going to chew this stuff all the time. I'm going to learn to chew it in my sleep. You did me a good turn when you sent Terry to my office, he's—"

"I never authorized him to tell me all this, but you know the man. He's honest and simple hearted as a child. He just laid out the whole story right off. He said that you saw the merit of the thing as clear as possible and that it was wholly a question of capital with you."

"But I didn't say—"

"Wait," said Harland, with an approving gesture which seemed to give him positive delight because it didn't hurt him. "Just grant me the floor, for I've got only one minute. Mrs. Harland and I are going out, and the carriage is at the door. This is what I want to say: Of course this kanitu business isn't big enough for me to give it any personal attention, but if you want to drop in your little two thousand and see the thing I'll put up the balance of the capital, whatever we can figure out that it ought to be. We'll talk that over tomorrow. Goodbye for the present."

And he shook hands vigorously and slipped away as lightly as a boy. Austin remained in a dazed condition, from which he was unable to emerge even in the presence of Celia Harland.

In his apartments, however, and under the exciting influence of good tobacco he was able to analyze the situation, and he held it in three branches:

First—Terry is the son of the father of lies, but he meant to do me a kindness. Shall I betray him and wreck his hopes?

Second—Mr. Harland has been stricken with the fortunate decision that I am a good business man—the only kind of man he likes or understands. If I tell him the facts and reject this scheme he will think I am a donkey. Can I risk that?

Third—Mr. Harland has looked into this game, and he believes that it will win. His opinion is worth two of mine. To go into this with him and prove my ability under his eyes and drive this enterprise to success is the short road to heaven on earth for me. Shall I ever have such another chance?

No one will be in doubt about the decision which Austin made from the facts of the case as stated under those three headings. Within a week the partnership was formed, the money banked, the game begun. Within a month there were indications of success. Terry's advertising matter had begun to appear and to excite phenomenal interest. Within a year a four-story business building had been built up. And one evening in his bachelor quarters Austin announced his engagement and accepted the cordial congratulations of his friend Terry, now changed to almost beyond recognition and clothed to the edge of fashion.

"I tell you, my son," said Terry, "there's no limit to a brave man's hopes in this big world. 'No desperado'—there's the only motto. And if any man has a right to be happy, it's you. You've never realized, you've never understood, what I went through. Two years—two years, by Jingo—I struggled to reach that really island of ivory I saw it. No, sir, I was never within two miles of it!"

"Never?"

"Certainly not. At the end of all that crushing I landed in San Francisco with only a sailor's wages in my pocket and my hopes no nearer than they had been at the start. What did I do?—Despair? Not much! I could not get this confounded kanitu. Very well, I said to myself that I would not be beaten. I made the stuff."

"Made it?"

"Yes, sir. Listen to me. Ten years ago there'd been a great rheumatism cure on the market, but it failed because the proprietors didn't know how to advertise. But I knew how to do it. I raised a hundred dollars—bought it—and bought the formula of the 'Hawkins'—old Hiram Hawkins, the best thing that ever was. I experimented with a kind of snakeroot and discovered that a little stick of it the size of a cigarette could soon up near a table spoonful of the Old Hiram Hawkins and that the stuff worked better taken that way than out of the spoon. By Jingo, it knocked rheumatism silly!"

Austin strode across the room and caught Terry by the shoulder with a grip that nearly broke his bones.

"Is you mean to tell me that I have banked both the public and Douglas Harland?"

"Banked?" cried Terry. "Why, man, you're a public benefactor. From first to last, have we heard of a single case where our remedy has failed? No, sir, we haven't."

"But, Mr. Harland? How can I tell him? I have cheated him. I have stolen his daughter. I—"

"My dear fellow, Mr. Harland knows all about it—has known from the start. I had to tell him or he wouldn't come in. He's got to depend upon a cannibal chief for these goods," said he in our first interview, 'you'll get stuck. Your supply is beyond your reach. It's a fatal weakness. Then I told him the truth. That's all right; said he, 'but don't mention it to Austin. He's got one of those New England consciences. They don't prevent men from going into games like this, but they make them uncomfortable. He'll do better work if he doesn't know.' So I've kept mum."

He drew himself up to his full height of five feet four inches and tapped his foot proudly upon the board of an immaculate dress shirt. Austin sank into a chair, covered his face with his hands and laughed.

"A Little Problem."

Two miles in a day is a record on an eight gallon-cask full of wine; also an empty five gallon and an empty three gallon cask. They wish to measure out four gallons each, but if you can't do it? Figure it out. It is not so hard?

If your fingers grew out at your elbow and your toes sprouted out at your knee, and your mouth was on top of your foot. How funny, indeed, that would be! And suppose that your nose went on your head?

And your eyes dangled down from your forehead? And your ears hooked out backward, not forward?

A fine pickle you would be in! —Washington Star.

THE BOY'S DEN.

Suggestions That May Help Its Owner in Making It Attractive.

Often boys display much ingenuity and artistic taste in fitting up their "dens" with furniture and decorations from their own hands.

With the necessary carpentering tools, a few pots of paint and furniture stain, a few brushes, etc., the boy will show his room proudly to his parents and friends, who in turn will be not only much astonished but highly pleased with what he has accomplished there. And often the furniture he builds is more serviceable, as well as more artistic, than the cheaply put together stuff that now floods the market and fills the homes. Besides this, his "den" is characteristic of himself, and he will feel a pride in its originality.

A few rough drawn designs for old pieces to help furnish a boy's "den" are given here. In following them the young cabinetmaker will begin to discover points for improvement, and gradually he will become his own designer, as well as being skilled in the use of tools.

No. 1 shows a convenient and artistic window bench with shelf for newspapers, etc. It is made of any kind of wood the boy finds at hand and may be simply painted to match the color of the woodwork in the room or stained some pretty contrasting color.

No. 2 is an old bit of a table made with broomstick legs, a barrel end for the top and a three cornered shelf.

No. 3 is a "cross legged stool," a necessary acquisition in a boy's den. It is of cherry colored wood, with padded seat covered with burlap.

The Carrier Bee.

You often have heard of carrier pigeons and the part they play in war, but how many boys and girls ever heard of carrier bees?

These little honey gatherers have such a sense of direction that they can always fly straight to their hives, even from places they have never visited before.

We are told that a few years ago a beekeeper trained some of his insects as message carriers. Knowing they will always fly home from any point they go to, he sent them on errands to the bees and set them loose in the field unfamiliar place. In a very short time they were back at their own hives, messages and all.

Some people think bees might be made very useful in war times, and, indeed, they are being trained to see just how far and how directly they will fly.

Some Dolls.

Most dolls are born in Thüringen, a province of Germany. Thüringen is sometimes called puppet land on this account. Almost the entire population is employed making some parts of the dolls which are sent to every country in the world except India. The little Thüringen dolls are said to be the only dolls children in the world, all countries having something which the little girl can rock to sleep and love. That the American girls love dolls, one has only to read that last year over $8,000,000 worth of dolls came into this country, and nearly all of them from Thüringen.

Condiments.

Why should a housekeeper never put the letter M in her refrigerator? Because it will change ice into mice.

Why is the sun so hot? Because it rises from the year.

What is the cheapest feature of a cow? Nostrils, two for a cent (cents).

What is the smallest room in the world? Mushroom.

If your fingers grew out at your elbow and your toes sprouted out at your knee, and your mouth was on top of your foot. How funny, indeed, that would be! And suppose that your nose went on your head?

And your eyes dangled down from your forehead? And your ears hooked out backward, not forward?

No Poison in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

From Napier New Zealand, Herald: Two years ago the Pharmacy Board of New South Wales, Australia, had an analysis made of that market. Out of the entire list they found only one that they declared was entirely free from all poison. This exception was Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, made by the Chamberlain Medicine Company, Des Moines, Iowa, U. S. A. The absence of all narcotics makes this remedy the safest and best that can be had; and it is with a feeling of security that any mother can give it to her little ones. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is especially recommended by its makers for coughs, colds and whooping cough. This remedy is for sale by C. J. Hayden.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Scrap shavings or a small lump of yellow soap tucked into a mouse hole prevents the reappearance of the mouse.

Put brown paper on the top of the wardrobes. This is easily taken off and shaken and prevents the wardrobe becoming thick with dust.

A grease spot can be removed from leather by applying a little kerosene. It may make the surface dull, but it can restore the polish with the white of an egg.

Ink stains on linen should be soaked out in milk, and the sooner this is done the better, for though wet ink comes out readily, it takes a good deal of soaking to remove it if it has been allowed to dry in.

When cleaning rugs or carpets, manage if possible to do it on a windy day when the high wind will blow away the dust pounded out and decrease the amount of labor that would be necessary on a quiet day.

Beauty and Attraction.

Attraction and beauty are two very different things. Who has not seen the merely pretty woman come out a very poor second best to the plain, fascinating one? Of course magnetism and the mental qualities that fall under the head of intellect, vivacity and wit have much to do with the final fact of fascination, but it has also many other ingredients, powerful among them being femininity, which is in itself a complexity, a subtle perfume, delicacy of dress, hands and complexion, a careful coiffure and a hundred and one other things that go to make up its alluring charm and refinement—Ladies' Pictorial.

Selecting the Good Sow.

The only way to be sure of raising the right kind of pigs another year is to select the breeding sows early. Few men properly breed, bred to the right kind of sows and give them good care throughout the season. A little extra effort in this direction is well worth the money in which he can make more by a little good management than he could by many days of hard work—Michigan Farmer.

Best Land For Sheep.

The nation breeds do better than the world on level land, but all the rolling or hilly land, and none of them can stand wet feet or marshy pastures.

Training the Colt.

It is a comparatively easy matter to train a horse to move promptly and step quickly if you commence right when you first handle him.
